PASTOR'S CORNER

The Anointing of the Sick is the sacrament that "is intended to confer a special grace on the Christian who experiences the difficulties inherent in the state of illness and old age" (Catechism, no. 1527).

As desired by the Second Vatican Council (cf. Sacrosanctum concilium, n. 73), instead of the name Extreme Unction the name Anointing of the Sick is now used, trying to make clear that it is not only a sacrament for those who are in the last moment of their life, but for those Christians who begin to be in danger of death, due to illness or old age. It is called 'anointing' because the subject is anointed with sacred oil.

The conditions that the subject must meet are:

- a) be baptized,
- b) having reached the use of reason,
- c) have the intention to receive it
- d) danger of death due to illness or old age.

La Unción de los Enfermos es el sacramento que «tiene por fin conferir una gracia especial al cristiano que experimenta las dificultades inherentes al estado de enfermedad y vejez» (Catecismo, n. 1527).

Tal como deseaba el Concilio Vaticano II (cfr. Sacrosanctum concilium, n. 73), en lugar del nombre de Extremaunción se usa ahora el de Unción de los Enfermos, intentando hacer patente que no es sólo un sacramento para quienes se encuentran en el último momento de su vida, sino para aquellos cristianos que empiezan a estar en peligro de muerte, por enfermedad o vejez. Se llama 'unción' porque al sujeto se le unge con óleo sagrado.

Las condiciones que ha de reunir el sujeto son:

- a) estar bautizado,
- b) haber llegado al uso de razón,
- c) tener intención de recibirlo,
- d) peligro de muerte por enfermedad o vejez.
